SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS OF JESUS CHRIST - AND THE GREAT THINGS THAT HE IS DOING IN AND AROUND THE COVINGTON DISTRICT OF THE KENTUCKY ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Volume II, Issue 2

February, 2012 Issue

Reflections—a word or two from our District Superintendent

I'm pleased to introduce to you a new part-time district staff person. Grace Rockstroh started in January as our District New Church Development Director. She will meet monthly as part of the conference NCD board as well as facilitate monthly meetings with a new district NCD Team. She will be available for all the churches of our district as you look at the potential of planting new churches, new outreach worship services and satellite campuses. She will also help you with demographic information about your community/mission field. New Church Development can and needs to happen across our district. I've asked Grace to take a moment to introduce herself:

Hi everyone! I am so honored to be joining the district team and can't wait to see the great things that God has in store for us. I grew up here in Northern Kentucky as a United Methodist and I currently attend The Community, a new United Methodist church plant in our district. My husband Tim and I currently live in Ludlow and have quickly grown to love this district and the people of Northern Kentucky. I graduated from Indiana Wesleyan University and have worked for a variety of non-profit organizations. I'm excited to serve as the District New Church Development Director and I look forward to meeting each of you over the next few months. Please let me know how I can serve you as we come together to reach the lost and broken for Jesus Christ.

*Grace and Peace

Why Campus Ministry Matters, Part I: Raising Up New Church Leaders

I am passionate about campus ministry. I'll admit that I am biased.; God used the Wesley Foundation at Louisiana State University to call me into ministry. However, in my time as a student leaders and intern there and through other conversations, I know that not everyone seems to understand why campus ministry matters, particularly campus ministry like Wesley Foundations that tend to be separate from the local church.

For some, they think that the local church should be responsible for campus ministry. A more integrated approach should be taken. For others, campus ministry is like an extension of youth ministry, which is often not regarded as valuable or serious ministry.

While I do think campus ministries should have ties to local churches, having campus ministries as separate entities is vital for the work they do: raising up a new generation of spiritual leaders for God's Church.

College is a time of self exploration, questioning, and identity formation for many young adults in the US. The role a campus ministry plays in this is to provide a safe space to explore and question the Christian faith. In my own experience, I was exposed to everything from Lee Strobel to Marcus Borg and am the better for it. Especially as the world moves into an intellectual climate of less certitude and suspicion of grand narratives, campus ministries carve out a needed space where young people can encounter the radical call to be disciples of Jesus.

As a student wrestles with his or her faith, campus ministries also provide leadership opportunities to train new leaders. I was invited to help plan our weekly worship as well as lead bible studies and small groups. It was through using my gifts and graces as a leader and the encouragement of my peers that I heard God calling me into ministry. And I wasn't the only one.

I wish there was a study that followed up on college students in UM campus ministries to see what they do afterwards. From my own group of friends at the Wesley Foundation @ LSU, I know of nine students who responded to a call to ordained ministry, which is more than 10% of our average worship attendance. In addition to ordained ministry, many of the students went on to carry out ministry as active lay people in their churches. I believe God does all of this through having separate campus ministries in which students can be challenged and challenge one another to live as disciples of Jesus Christ.

Consider supporting our Wesley Foundations through prayer, financial contributions, encouraging your graduating high schools to connect with one, or volunteering for one in some way. The investment we are making is in the future leadership of our church.

David Johnston is the pastor of the Butler/Concord Charge in Pendleton County, Kentucky.

RETIREES are strongly encouraged to attend

The February Clergy Meeting will be on Tuesday, February 21, at Asbury UMC at 10:00 am. Speaker will be Rob Moorlach. This meeting will be "listening sessions" for those impacted both now and into the future by the retiree health liability faced by the Kentucky Conference. The Retiree Health Liability Task Force wants these sessions to be truly listening sessions. Rob has arranged with the Communications Department to record each session so they truly engage the attendees in a conversation about this liability and the proposed plans to meet it. 2010 amount. Thank you so much for this wonderful offering. We give God great praise and thanks for His provision!

We expect the benevolent care funds needed for our Village residents in 2012 to be $85,000 (the same as in 2011), thus we greatly need your continued support. Some seniors who live longer than they expect and need healthcare sooner than they had hoped, often outlive the money they've worked so hard to save over their lifetime. Because of your generous giving to the offering, the Village is able to help those residents to stay "at home" in the Village close to family and friends. Materials will be mailed to all churches.

The Community Is in Need of a Van

The Community is currently looking for a van that a church or local organization is ready to "put out to pasture." As we move towards weekly worship, we constantly find ourselves looking for nooks, crannies and garages to store our stuff, and we've realized that the best way to do so might be in the back of a van, so we're looking for a "mobile church." If you know of a church somewhere in the District or in the Conference that might be getting rid of a van and would be willing to donate it to The Community, please let us know! Contact Matt Johnson by email, matt@thecommunityky.org or by phone (859) 334-0375
